OVERVIEW

Maria has worked as a domestic worker for most of her life, cleaning homes and doing housework.
Although her income is low, she has always managed to provide for her three children.
Recently, her oldest son was accepted into a university, and while this is a moment of pride for her, the high tuition fees present a significant financial burden.
With no savings and limited financial options, Maria is now seeking a loan to help pay for her son's education.

GOALS

Maria is determined to secure her son's education by applying for a loan to cover his tuition fees.
The primary goal is to find an affordable loan with low interest rates and flexible payment options that align with her limited income.
She values honesty and transparency in financial services, as she feels overwhelmed by complex financial language.

MAIN FRUSTRATIONS

Maria is not familiar with loan processes or complex financial terms, she needs a simple, clear loan process that explains all costs and repayment terms in a way she can easily understand.
Her low income limits her ability to find favorable loan terms, and she's unsure about her eligibility.
Difficulty finding trustworthy financial institutions that offer loan products catered to people in her situation.

MOOD IMAGES

Maria is forced to put up her house as collateral, given the fact that she has no valuable assets to be able to write off as collateral
